AQR is conducting a Member Benefit workshop
NVivo 7: the method and the tools.
A 1-day, hands-on workshop
with Lyn Richards and Helen Marshall.

Wondering if software can help you with your qualitative project?

Wanting to try NVivo before you commit to learning it thoroughly and using it?

Software tools are of limited use, even dangerous, if wielded without methodological purpose. This is a workshop with an AQR difference: its emphasis is on methodology. It also offers an AQR membership benefit: a discount for members of the Association, and free membership for participants who have not joined.

Lyn Richards is a founder and Director of QSR, member of the team that created NVivo, and author of ten books, most recently, Handling Qualitative Data, Sage, 2005: <http://www.lynrichards.org/>

Helen Marshall is an experienced NVIVO user and teacher of research methods. You can find her article 'What do we do when we code data?' in the Association's Qualitative Research Journal 2.1 2002. Go via the AQR site <http://www.latrobe.edu.au/aqr/>

When?

Friday 10th November, 2006, 9.30-5.00pm.

Where?

RMIT University, City Campus, Melbourne. Desktop computers are provided.

Costs and AQR benefits

Full cost: $300, $250 for fulltime unwaged students.

For non-members of AQR, a once-off "welcome package": a year's AQR membership and the workshop for the full cost.

For AQR members a discount: workshop costs only $235.

For details and an enrolment form go to the AQR website
